Just as we are going to press a friend has kindly furnished us with important despatches from the liberal army in Mexico. From these we learn that Gen. Miramon, after his defeat by Cd. Zuszua, fied towardz Zacatecas, pursued by the latter, and we now have a letter from that gallant officer to his superior, Gov. Vidauri, written in haste at 10 o'clock on the night of the 27th, in which he says: "After nine hours of hard fighting our valiant forces have been again crowned with glory, and gained a complete victory, leaving in our possession the plaze of Zacatecas. Tomorrow I will give you the particulars of this brilliant journey, limiting myself now to saying that the general-in-chief, Antonio Manero, and various other chiefs and officers, with a multitude of troops, have follen prisoners into our hands."

The friend who gives us this information tells that he is informed that two thousand stand of small arms and twelve cannon were taken by the constitutionalists, and that they were concentrating their forces for a combined attack on San Luis.

The Plymouth is now at Washington, and could in a few hours be got perfectly fit for sea service. Captain Dallgren's new 11-inch shell-guns would be dangerous to trifle with. We understand that Captain Dallgren's offer will be accepted.

The Yaorse Frozival is spoken of in high terms by the papers in all parts of the Union. The Washington correspondent of the New York Sunday Times says of it.

"One of the most delightful fits I have attended in years was the May festival of the Germans, who annually turn out in large numbers, and socially pass a day in May on an extensive pic-nic. All classes, conditions, and ages were there, from the infant to the octogenarian. A procession, headed by the Washington Yagers, and composed principally of Turners and the members of the Sangerbund and other musical societies, made a very showy parade through the streets on its way to Schafer's, on Seventh street, where the festivities were to take place. And what a scene was there! Such fun and jollity, and all of the most harmless and pleasant description. The singing was excellent, the gymnastic performances wonderful, and the consumption of lager was absolutely fearful to contemplate."

The accused was committed to answer at court, in default of $5,000 bail.
